

Special strand 2025

Collective identities and group solidarities in the late Middle Ages.

During the IMMLleida, we want to emphasise a specific objective: Collective identities and group solidarities in the late Middle Ages.

Human beings in middle age are never alone. Men and women in the Middle Ages only have meaning within a collectivity, as a form of group solidarity and collective identity, whether it is the senatorial bond, the village, the town, the nation... Over the last few years, historiography has deepened our knowledge of collective identities and group solidarity. It is a good time to review the current state of research.

Invited speakers:

Brian Catlos (University of Colorado), Give Me Convenience or Give Me Death: The Dynamics of Diversity in the Medieval Spains

Miguel A. Motis (Universidad San Jorge), Las comunidades judías en Aragón: claves de identidad, cohesión y solidaridad de una minoría confesional (ss. XII-XV)

Amedeo Feniello (Università degli Studi Dell'Aquila), Title to be confirmed

José Augusto Soto Mayor Pizarro (Universidade do Porto), Title to be confirmed

Élodie Lecuppre-Desjardin (Université de Lille), Title to be confirmed

Léonard Dauphant (Université de Lorraine), Title to be confirmed

Claire Soussen (Université du Littoral Côte d'Opale), Title to be confirmed

Carles Rabassa (Universitat Jaume I), Title to be confirmed

Martine Charageat (Université Bordeaux Montaigne), Title to be confirmed

Luciano Gallinari (Istituto di Storia dell'Europa Mediterranea), Title to be confirmed

Karen Stöber (Universitat de Lleida), Title to be confirmed

